Summary (by Kate Devitt, GP Academic Skills Adviser): Images found via http://search.creativecommons.org may still be subject to copyright and must be evaluated on an image-by-image basis before use.

Please note that searching in some domains (e.g. Flickr) using Creative Commons Search still requires QUT staff to check the origin of the image. Many individual Flickr account holders store images using Creative Commons licenses, yet the images are copyrighted to other organisations. For example, suppose a QUT staff member searches Creative Commons for images of mission control during the moon landing and finds this image:

http://www.flickr.com/photos/vanderkroew/3743797932/

While the image is hosted by Euclid VanderKroew under a Creative Commons license, Euclid is not the right's holder. Luckily he cites the correct NASA document number in the caption and a NASA url, so that a correct citation can be made according to NASA copyright http://grin.hq.nasa.gov/copyright.html . QUT staff wishing to use a NASA image should cite NASA as the originator of the image and abide by...
Thieme eBook Library: short-term trial until December 15th, 2010

Thieme eBook Library provides access to an online collection of illustrated full-color medical related textbooks. Available on the Short Term Trials page http://www.library.qut.edu.au/find/databases/trials.jsp

HEDBIB: Database on Higher Education

QUT Library has access to HEDBIB is a database on higher education systems, administration, planning, policy, and evaluation. It has been maintained by the IAU since 1988 with contributions from UNESCO Headquarters; the European Centre for Higher Education (CEPES); UNESCO International Institute for Educational Planning (IIEP); UNESCO International Institute for Higher Education in Latin America (IESALC); the American Council on Education (ACE).

HEDBIB is available to current QUT staff and students. Available at all QUT campuses but is NOT available from off campus.

SAGE Research Methods online: short-term trial until December 31st, 2010

SAGE Research Methods Online (Beta) is a powerful research methods tool, linking SAGE’s renowned research methods content with sophisticated search tools to help researchers answer their research methods questions like never before. The site contains 504 book titles, including the entire QASS (aka Little Green Book) series, 6 dictionaries, 4 encyclopedias and a Major Work containing journal articles. Sage Research Methods Online is in beta, not all features will be functioning perfectly, and additional content will continue to be added through the rest of the year. Comments.

Scholarly Publishing Guide

An excellent Scholarly Publishing Subject Guide is available at http://libguides.library.qut.edu.au/content.php?pid=84068. The guide provides advice on scholarly publishing, how to choose a journal and maximise the impact of your research publications and the benefits of and how to publish in open access journals. Also one may access this Subject Guide by going to the QUT Library home page and then selecting Research support in the Quicklinks section.

On the next page select the link Scholarly communication and on this page you can access a link to the Scholarly Publishing Subject Guide.

Dissemination and Sharing of Research Results: NSF Data Sharing Policy

The National Science Foundation (NSF) in the U.S. has released its new research data policy statement.

Investigators are expected to share with other researchers, at no more than incremental cost and within a reasonable time, the primary data, samples, physical collections and other supporting materials created or gathered in the course of work under NSF grants. Grantees are expected to encourage and facilitate such sharing. See Award & Administration Guide (AAG) Chapter VLD.4 <http://www.nsf.gov/pubs/policydocs/pappguide/nsf11001/aag_6.jsp#VID4>.
